Abstract

Data is information but understanding of data types is very important. Different data type will use different tools (i.e. in statistics and in data science analysis) in describing or inferencing the data. Some ambiguities of handling the data always occur. In this talk, some critical and important criteria of selecting correct data types will be discussed with logical and simple discussion. Data should be handle with care so that proper, valid and scientific findings can be obtained leading to correct conclusion.
